

What jobs and activities might graduates do?

Graduates with this degree are employed in a range of jobs – see some examples below.

Business systems analyst, process analyst

- Designs, maintains and improves processes and systems
- Supports organisation to assess current and future needs, goals and requirements
- Provides solutions that align with organisational objectives

Business data analyst

- Advises on and contributes to business-data driven projects for organisational improvement
- Uses statistical models and analytic tools to analyse data and develop dashboards, infographics and reports for decision-making
- Transforms data findings into interpretable insights for organisations

Project manager

- Manages an information system project plan, budget and schedule
-

Henry

Managing Director, Corvecto, Christchurch
Executive Director, EPIC Innovation

Bachelor of Commerce with an endorsement in Information Systems

My role at CerebralFix as President of Business Development included seeking out new business whilst maintaining contact and building relationships with our existing business partners such as Disney, DreamWorks and Sony Pictures to name a few.

How has your study prepared you for what you are doing now?

My degree has helped to nurture and solidify my ability to commit to completing and executing the goals I set for myself, no matter how ridiculous they may look from afar.

What do you aim to achieve with your career?

I seek to reinforce the international perception that New Zealand companies are capable of not only meeting but exceeding expectations when performing on the global stage. I believe it's realistic that we can grow New Zealand into the Silicon Valley of the Southern Hemisphere.